Difference Between Gen. Sherman and Gen. Cox.

The Chicago Times of the 19th lust., by request reproduced some remarks made by General SHERMAN, during his late visit to this (that) city, in which he alluded to the question of Negro Suffrage. The General was serenaded by battery A of the Chicago Light Artillery, accompanied by the Great Western Light Guard Band, at the Tremont House. After having talked to them about the causes and termination of, and their partisipation in, the War, he adverted "to the Negroes, who had been made tree. He said that the Government would require to institute some system of labor, in order that the lands of the South might be cultivated. He wanted those who had been in the South to bear testimony to the condition of these freed Negroes. His own personal opinion was, that they were not fitted for the exercise of the franchise. [Loud cheers.] He wanted them to get a fair price for their labor-to own and sultivate the lands; but he did not think they were fitted to take part in the legislation of the country." This sort of language anybody can understand. It is a frank, open and above-board declaration that, in his judgment, the Negro should not be allowed to exercise the privilege of voting or of exercising any influence in the matter of Government. General Cox evades the question, by saying that he will let "the logic of events settle it," and his party friends are doing their utmost to shape affairs with a view of making it appear that "the logic of events" shall require the bestowal of suffrage upon the Negroes in Ohio and in the South. Why can't Gen. Cox say distinctly that he does not favor conferring suffrage upon the Negroes, if he is opposed to doing so; or that he favors the bestowal of it upon them, if, in his opinion, it should be given to them. If he were to declare himself explicitly one way or the other, it would be the means of preventa great deal of lying.

Good For the Privates.

The Ohio Statesman says that the Union men have not nominated any "private" sol-dier for Representative. The Clinton county Union men nominated Jesse Oren, who private in the 79th O. V. I. He wa the only private we have heard of who has offered himself for the General Assembly. Dayton Journal.

This notice speaks well for the private soldiers. There has as yet been, according to the testimony of the Dayton Journal, "only" one "private" throughout the length and breadth of the great State of Ohio, out of the thousands who have returned home from the army, "who has offered himself for the General Assembly" in an Abolition Convention. Only one has been found willing to go to the Legislature, and assist the Negro Equalityites to put the Negro on a political equality with his White comrades, who, with them, endured the fatigues and the hard fare that talls to the lot of the private soldier. They stand true to their race. No petty office, with its shadowy honors, can lure them into a dishonoring of their race. All honor to the privates, then. What a rebuke this fact is to the officers who give practical evidence, by accepting such nominations, of a willingness to dishonor their

A Lie Out Somewhere.

A special sent from Wooster to the Clere land Leader, giving an account of the soldiers' reunion at Wooster on the 17th. represented that there were "20,000 Union men in council." This account was copied into the State Journal on Monday. A correspondent of the Chicago Republican says: There were about 2,000 soldiers in procession, and 8,000 to 10,000 citizens were present." Something of a difference between the representations of correspondents belonging to the same party in regard to the same meeting, it will be observed.

General Cox Agrees With the Oberlinites in Principle.

General Cox in his speeches on the Reserve, sought to show that he, in his letter to the Oberlinites, only differed with them in the matter of detail; but not as to principle. That is to say, he agrees with them that the Negroes should be made politically the equal of the Whites.

Secretary Harlan's Speech.

On the night of the 17th, Secretary Han-LAN was serenaded at Washington, in response to which he made a speech, in which he claimed that President Jourson had thus far faithfully tollowed in the footsteps of President Lincoln, and that there was ot a particle of doubt but that he would with fidelity carry out the policy of the party by which he had been elected.

DR. BURKLEY, who is now home from visit to Richmond and other Southern nts, does not confirm the statements nade by Abelition correspondents, touchme the feeling of the Southern people tod the Government. He affirms that they are completely cured of secession, that they regard the institution of slavery as fead, and are bestirring themselves to im-prove their temporal condition. They have herarms nor ammunition, and no money h which to buy any. Garrisons of ops are, therefore, a uscless squandering the people's money.

If anything more dastardly than the foregoing has appeared in an Ohio newspaper, for ten years, it escaped our notice. Mark its character. The coward who wrote it does not make any charge. He insinuates a grave imputation and then impudently proposes to take pleasure in the publication of a note from the gentleman insulted, denying that there is cause for such insinuation. He knows that by this execrable tion. He knows that by this execrable course he puts himself beneath the person-al notice of any man who entertains a decent respect for his own character, and he expects that he has given occasion for declaration in the pot-house circles of his party that the State Treasurer has been unlawfully acquiring money by means of his official station. When a political party must resort to such bushwhacking, it is low indeed. The dregs of treason are not lower; and the editor who indulges it is a disgrace to the profession. Demoralization resulting from sympathy with slavery and anxiety for the success of slave power, by means of rebellion, could alone debase even an originally-mean character so low. -Ohio State Journal.

The editor the State Journal, in referring to the death of Mr. G. N. Hargoon, editor of the Western Reserve Chronicle, says that on the Tuesday preceding his death he took tea with Mr. HAPGOOD and his family, and that Mr. Hargoop warned him "against the exhaustive effect of over-work, and feared our [his] days would be few.", If the editor of the State Journal shall indulge in many such manifestations of passion and hair-tearing as he exhibits in the above, we fear that Mr. Hargood's apprehensions as to his life will be realized, There was nothing in our notice of G VOLNEY DORSEY calculated to excite anybody's wrath, unless the rumor to which we referred was bottomed on truth. The rumor was not created in The STATESMAN office. It came to us outside of the office, and we thought it due to the public and to Mr. Dorsey, to state that such a rumor was be he either man or devil, could have exeobtaining currency, and to give him an opportunity of contradicting it through our columns, if it were false. In these days of wholesale swindling and corruption, of defalcations and forgeries by men who have worn the outside of unchallenged honesty, the affectation of wrathful indignation is hardly up to the demand of the occasion. It don't meet the case. What is the history of the Treasury of Ohio? Buss' accounts were not in a satisfactory condition when he left it. BRESLIN is in exile. because of a misuse of the funds in the Treasury; Gisson did not leave it honorably; Stone is understood to have left it carrying a heavy load of liabilities. The editor of the State Journal, by re-reading his editorial, will find that it is all taken up in the abuse of the writer who wrote the "G. VOLNEY DORSEY" editorial, and that not one word is said in refutation of the "ru-" or "insinuation" therein contained Undoubtedly, this was an accidental omission; for we presume that the editor of the State Journal started out with the intention of refuting it, or of saying there was no truth whatever in it; but his passion and indignation getting the control of him, he forgot it altogether. The public have no knowledge as to what the editor of the Journal usually means; they accept his editorials as reflecting his actual views, onlinions and knowledge in regard to any subject upon which he may treat. This being the case, the editor of the State Journal will see that his editorial leaves Mr. Dorsey, unintentionally, of course, in a worse condition than our editorial left him; and we shall expect him to make a distinct denial of

No Hatred.

As we were returning from dinner on yesterday, we overtook "one of the boys in blue," belonging to the 2d Michigan Regiment. Sharing our umbrella from the meridian sun, he exclaimed, "it is very hot." "So I suppose," we responded, "especially to you who are so far from your home!" "We are going home," he replied, 'on Tuesday next, and I am anxious to be off. I wish we could all go home, it would be so pleasant." We gave our assent to this sentiment. He continued, "If it had been left to you and me, this terrible war would never have been. It sprung from higher circles. It is over now, and I want to go home, and let me assure you that I haven't the least hatred to any one in this country. And should you or any one else with whom I have met while here, meet me in the North at my home, you will be welcomed to the largest half of the comforts at my command." With this he bid us good day. We could but invoke the blessing of Heaven upon him, and wish him a safe transit home. This is the spirit of the man who fought us, and to all such As we were returning from dinner on of the man who fought us, and to all su we extend the hand of friendship.—Mac

Gen. McCook on the Sand Creek

You know, Mr. Dorsey, that this is a somewhat malicious world. You, doubtless, know that it was the opinion of Sir John Falstaff that this world is given to lying exceedingly. This is by way of saying to you, that the statement is gaining currency, that you have some how or other made a snug little sum off of the money you received into the State Treasury—a matter of some thirty or forty thousand dollars. Is there any truth in this statement, Mr. Dorsey—that is, is there any truth in the state order of the War Department, all affairs connected with the Indians in the West. ment, that you have, while Treasurer of State, realized from off of the tunds of the State anything over and above your salary? If you have not, it will afford us a men from "Cooper's Novels:" he has fought > to credence. Of Chivington's Sand Creek massacre he gave us many interesting de-tails, and he is of the opinion that it was the most coid-blooded, revolting, dia-bolical atrocity ever conceived by man or devil. The aworn accounts of witnesses of the affair are enough to make any man blush for his species. It was an in-discriminate, wholesale murder of men, women and children, accompanied by the disfigurement of dead bodies of both sexes, in every revolting and sickening form and manner. Unborn babes were torn from the wombs of dying mothers and scalped; children of the most tender ages were butchered; soldiers adorned their hats with portions of the bodies of both males and females, and the flag and uniform of the United States were disgraced by acts of fiendish barbarity, so revolting in their de-tails that a truthful account can not be pub-lished in a respectable journal, without giving offense to decency. And all these atrocities were committed on a band of Indians, who had, voluntarily, intrusted themselves to the protection of the Govern-ment, received assurances of care, and who had flying above the encampment, at that time, a white flag and a national banner, given them by the military authorities at Fort Lyon, with the promise that this was o be to them security and guardianship as long as they remained under it and contin-ued friendly.

> These Indians were under the leadership of "Black Kettle," a chief whose friendship for the whites had been proverbial for years. for the whites had been proverbial for years. He had been in the employ of our Government as a scout; had been engaged by Lieutenant Colonel Tappan, of the 1st Colorado, to keep a watch upon the Sioux and other hostile tribes; had only a few days before prevented, by giving timely information, an intended raid; and he brought the men women and children of his tribe together to live near the fort, and under the care of the whites. His trust was repaid by care of the whites. His trust was repaid by indistriminate massacre; his frienship was rewarded by outrage on the living and disfigurement of the dead; his confidence requitted by betrayal, by rapine, by mur-der, so sickening in its forms that it passes all understanding to imagine bow any one, cuted it. Added to these crimes, and making them more henious, is the fact that with-in some distance of the scene of the massa-cre were a body of hostile Indians, who had notoriously been engaged in committing depredations. These Chivington permitted to go unharmed, probably because their warriors numbered as many as did the men of his command. So to this cruelty must be added cowardice; to his barbarity, poltroonery.

All these facts are established by sworn tatements in possession of Gen, McCook, and they agree in every respect with the testimony taken by Lieut. Col. Tappan, of the 1st Colorado, as he related them to us some days ago.

What Boes it Mean ?

The following telegram from New York was published in yesterday's issue: "The Tribune's special says Col. Brown of the Freedmen's Bureau, has been selected to aid the negroes who were made free by the President's Proclamation, in getting their pay from their former masters for labor from the date of the Proclamation. Col. get Gen. Howard's opinion in a few days. To us there is but a single construction to be placed upon this announcement, and that is, the Government intends forcing the Southern people to pay their negroes for services rendered since the date the Emancipation Proclamation went into effeet, which was on the first of January, ered from the Northern press and the re-ported opinion of President Johnson we vere led to infer that, as slavery was a local Institution, the people of the slaveholding States should dispose of it; but, if the above telegram is based on fact, we have been sorely mistaken. In 1862, the date of the Proclamation, a war was in existence between the South ern States and the United States, and the President of the latter issued a Proclama-tion setting forth this fact and declaring that unless the Southern States put down to the old Government, in a specified time, certain punishments should be inflicted, and, among other things, slaves would be mancipated. This, we think, was the substance of the Proclamation, but are not pos-itive, for we have not read it since '62. The "rebellion" did not cease, and, as a matter of course, the penalties of the Proclamation were accepted, to be inflicted as soon as the United States became capable.

But the only question for examination after admitting the constitutionality and legality of the Proclamation, is whether the slaves were freed until the United States authorities had the means and power of enforcing the provisions of said Proc-lamation in the States at war? We hold that they were not, for at the time the that they were not, for at the time the Proclamation was issued, the authorities of the United States had no control whatever over the States of the South, consequently could not interfere with any of our interests or institutions, only as the fortunes of war gave them the power. This being the case our slaves could not be emancipated until the old Government was able to do so need arms.

will not be forced to say that the people will not be forced to pay their servants for their services since the 1st of January, 1863. their services since the 1st of January, 1863, for this they will have to do if the President has so decided, but there will be no justice in it. If this thing is done the people of the South should compel the abolition of the negro as far as possible, and by this means save themselves from additional expense and trouble, and insults by such men as Beecher, Wilson and Chase.

If we are wrong, what does the dispatch mean?—Selma Times.

The Reliability of the Telegraphic

A few days since the telegraph had the following "item of news," purporting to come from Savannah, Ga.: "J. D. Howell, a brother-in-law of Jeff. Davis, who, as previously stated, was ar-rested for drunken and disorderly conduct, and uttering insulting and disloyal lan-guage in the Pulaski House, has been sentenced to a fine of $250, six month's impris-onment, and subsequently to be sent out of the district. Another rebel, who partici-pated with Howell in his criminal demon-strations, has been imprisoned in the city guard-house."

This was published in all the daily pres of the country. Now for the sequel: Mr. Howell was in New York City at the time of the publication, with Mrs. Howell, his mother, and the children of Jefferson Dayls, and then first heard of the occurrence. It was a lie, made out of whole cloth, by the reporter of the New York Herald.—Cim. Enq.

How Singular.

How strange it is that the men who are so eager to tear down the distinction between the Whites and Blacks, and make them all equal at the ballot-box, are at work with equal persistency to build up distinction between rich and poor. To this end the revenue and tax laws are so arranged that while the farmers and mechanics are taxed on all they produce, the rich bond-holders are exempted from bearing their share of the expenses of the Government.

LUNACY but is as harmle s as pure rain water.

This celebrated proparation is the discovery of a celebrated I reach clamist, and has better leadingly used in Europe among the nobility for the past live years with the most wonderful success. t imparts Vigor and New Life to the Roots of the Hair, restorce it to its natural color and a causes it to grow poculiarly soft and luxuriant.

Nother Preparation is required to go with it, No other Preparation is required to go with B. ) as it combines a perfect Restorer and Hair Dressing.
The agreeable nature and the wonderful rapidity with which it restores the whitest hair to its primitive color and beauty, renders this preparation invaluable, and when once known, indispensable to the toilet table of every household. It will stop the hair from falling out with two or three applications, and is as ance preventive grainst bindines and althiscase of the scalp, and will cure them in their worst form when existing.

The present extensive sale of this article is owing entirely to the fact that it possesses every merit claimed for it, and avery lady or gentleman who has used the old Restoratives composed of sulphur and lead will at once appreciate this new preparation, which is used and recommended by the first medical authority.
